

My Trip to the Bank of Canada Museum

Today I am visiting the Bank of Canada Museum, where I will explore and learn things about money!

I know I have arrived at the Museum when I see the large glass pyramid.

Once inside, I can use the elevator or the stairs to find my way to the desk where a staff member will greet me.

If I have a coat, I can leave it in the cloakroom.

The staff will then hand me a special bracelet that I can put around my wrist. The bracelet helps me explore the Museum. It's okay if I don't want to wear the bracelet.

The staff at the Museum are very friendly and can answer my questions.

If I need to go to the washroom, I can ask the Museum's staff to help me find it.

The Museum has a few rules that help us stay safe and have fun. I will try to follow these rules:

- I must walk, not run.
- I must use my inside voice.
- I must stay near my adult.
- I will take turns with other children.
- I may not eat or drink anywhere inside the Museum.

When I am ready to enter the main gallery, I must wait for the automatic doors to open.

The hallway is dark and has lights that turn on and off. Inside the main gallery I can hear music.

The Museum has lots for me to see and do.

I can fly a rocket ship.

I can see displays of amazing money.

I can touch screens to find out more about money.

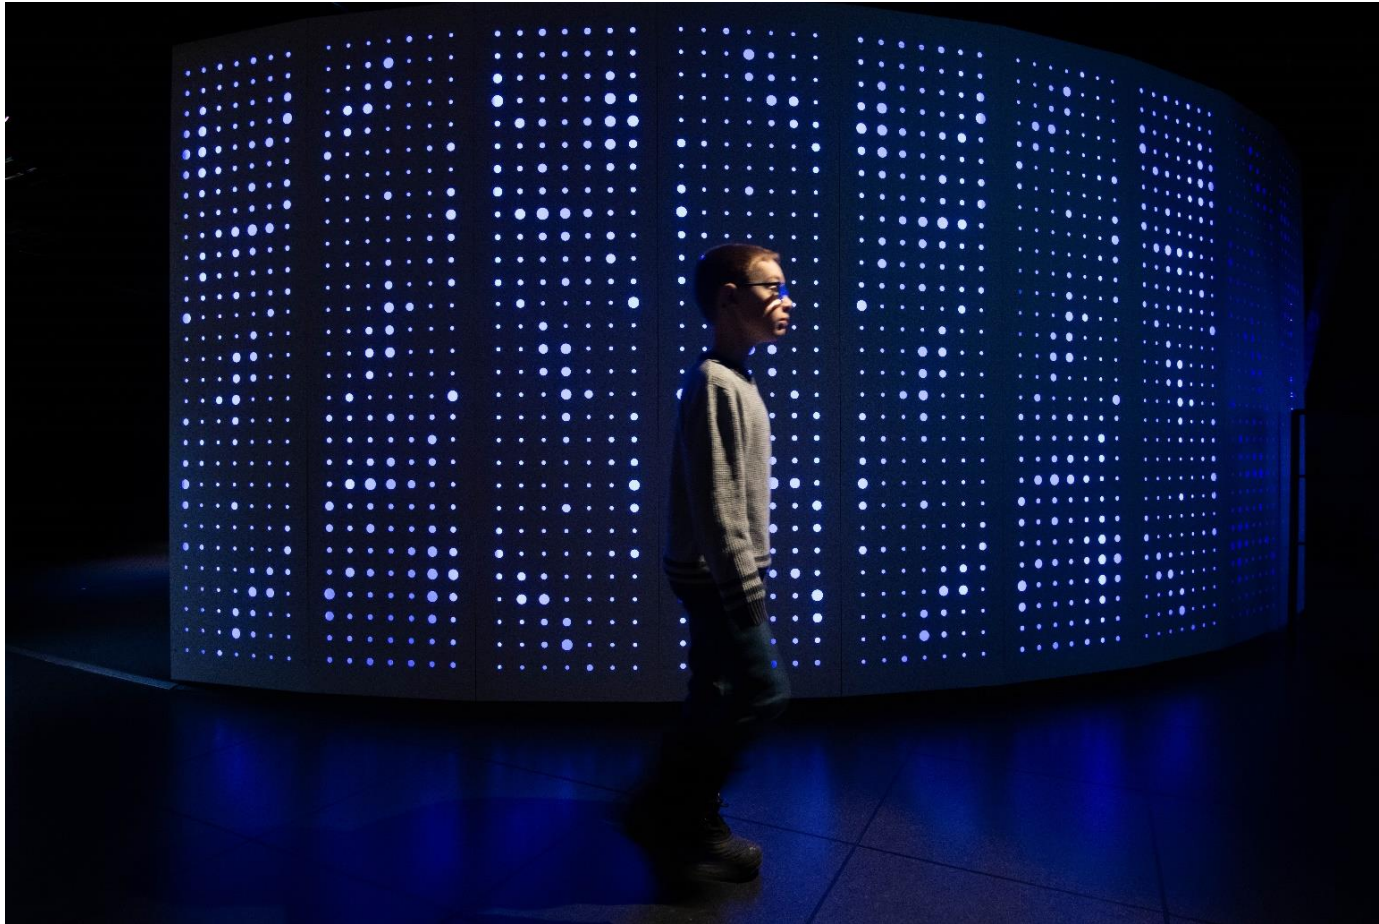

I can make my own bank note.

I can watch a movie in the theatre.

Some exhibits have bright lights and make sounds. I can borrow things like headphones or sunglasses to wear while I visit. I can also ask to go to a quiet place if I need to.

If I feel tired, I can find a seat and rest.

When I am done visiting the museum, I must return my bracelet.

I can visit the gift shop. The shop has toys and books for people to buy.

When I am finished, I return to the cloakroom to pick up my coat.

It is time to leave. My visit to the Museum is over. I can always come back to explore more things in the Museum.
